

This sprint was much more balanced than last sprint. We still have a few features that are incomplete, but the added difficulty from websockets, and the issues with handling nested react state models more than explain the discrepancy.